steel and manganese bronze has resulted in the discovery of a new metal. The chief characteristics of the metal are that it is extremely strong, being impervious to acids, and that it can be wrought into any shape. It is also very resistant to corrosion. The attention of the government was drawn to this metal, Commander W. M. Fowler of the bureau of ordinance inspected the metal, and after a thorough examination, he reported to the bureau on the subject.

The ladies' favorite is Creole Peppermint. Once taken, it is a household remedy forever after.

HOW IT WAS STARTED.

THE ORIGIN OF THE TEXAS BREWING COMPANY'S WORKS.

The Stock now far Above Par and not for Sale—What Its Business Now Amounts to.

One of the many things for which Fort Worth is noted is its brewery. Fort Worth should be as proud of her Texas brewery as the Texas brewery company is proud of Fort Worth.

Fort Worth has many manufacturing enterprises that are doing well, turning the raw material into manufactured goods and shipping them all over the state, but none that have been so successful from the start as the brewery. But when you know the reason, it is very plain why it is so.

The Texas brewing company have spared no time or money in order to make the brewery complete in all its appointments. They have the best plant, so men have said, who know what they are saying, anywhere and as good as there is in the world, as far as completeness is concerned, and it is not a small one by any means, there being but a very few larger in the United States.

The second reason why such good beer is made and the brewery so successful, is the good water to be found at Fort Worth. And the third reason, and the one which is the ability displayed by the president and general manager of the company, Mr. J. J. Gannon. If there had been no Mr. J. J. Gannon, the Texas brewing company would not cost you from $140 to $160 to-day, even if you can get it, for this is the price that the Texas brewing company stock was quoted sixty days after the first beer was made.

For the credit of the wonderful success that the Texas brewing company had from the beginning is due Mr. Gannon, he being a man of wonderful executive ability, good business qualifications, one of the most successful men in the country, and a hard-working man, he being at the brewery from 7 in the morning until 11 at night.

The story of how Fort Worth came to secure this mammoth enterprise, which would do so much toward making Fort Worth a city, and which employs so many men who spend their money in Fort Worth, is an interesting one.

Mr. Gannon had sold out an interest he had in a brewery in Dallas, a little over a year ago, and had made up his mind that he would travel. He went to Mexico, and traveled all over that state, and at last came back to Fort Worth.

While here he was driven by a friend to see a new artesian well which had just been completed. While looking at the pure, clean water he had seen, he was struck by the thought to himself, "that water ought to make beer." He went to Dallas, where there were a few days, but kept thinking about the Fort Worth water, and when he got back to Fort Worth, he decided to make it.

After selling out his brewery in Dallas, he had made up his mind that he would never go into the brewing business again, but after thinking over the situation for several days, thinking what a fine point from the railroad shipping standpoint Fort Worth was, he concluded to send a man to make an artesian water to a brewer's chemist to be analyzed.

He came to Fort Worth, secured two casks of the water, sent to Austin, where Houston and San Antonio and secured two casks each from all the places mentioned. These casks he sent to a chemist in the east, not telling him what the water was from, asking him to let him know how they would do for beer-making. The report came back soon that the water which had been taken from the Fort Worth well was the best for making beer that had ever been found.

Mr. Gannon soon organized a stock company with ample capital and began operations. He had a fine establishment, he had six tons of ice and 500 kegs of beer a day is the sequel.

Mr. Gannon is more than pleased with the reception his beer has received, as he has sold it at a profit of 200 per cent. He is educated up to home manufactures of any kind. They think anything made at home can not be as good as that made in another state, and they will buy beer that they can buy anywhere else and so sell the goods.

While the brewery was being erected Mr. Gannon wired a brewer's supply house in the east to send him a few kegs of beer. The brewer master he could find. The party wired back that he knew of a good one in Germany, a better man than could be found in the United States. Mr. Gannon wired him to secure the man regardless of expense; whatever contract he was made would be satisfactory to the Texas brewing company.
